

GAVE UNIQUE PARTY

at 2 o'clock Yesterday.

FOR MR. AND MRS. VINCENT

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Pond
Entertain at Whist.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Goldstandt gave a party for their children, Edna and Fred, yesterday afternoon. It was a railroad party and the ideas carried out were the most original ever heard of in the city.

The invitations were most unique. At the top was a picture of a train. The rest of the invitation read like this:

"Guessville, Jollytown and Riddle Railroad, Excursion party at Goldstandville, Saturday afternoon, February 24, 1900. Train starts at 2 o'clock. Edna S. Goldstandt and Fred S. Goldstandt, conductors. R. S. V. E."

The entire house was decorated in a manner as to suggest a train. The hall was the passenger station with the ticket window where the tickets were sold. In the other rooms the idea of buffet and parlor cars were carried out. The most prominent feature was the negro in uniform. His pockets were full of folders, and he carried a lantern and a ring full of baggage checks and passed around baskets of fruit and candy. He called the stations and kept the children in a continual uproar by his funny pranks. The tickets sold were as follows:

Rules and Regulations: "This ticket is not transferable, reversible or salable. It must be signed by the person to whom it is assigned. The assignee must not assign it to any other assign."

"The conductor will not punch this ticket. Punch is prohibited on this railroad."

"If you cannot crack these nuts call on the brakeman."

"Do not pull the bell rope; this is not a Pullman car."

"The company will not be responsible for cattle killed by the carelessness of the passengers who throw crackers out of the window."

"Doctors are not provided on this train, but if you have the grip it can be checked by the baggage master."

"The porter is the car-port and he has to have his tax."

The first station at which this train stops is "That for which our forefathers fought"; the second is, "One of the Apostles"; third, "Another name for people"; fourth, "One less in worth to one dozen"; fifth, "An extinct king of the primates"; sixth, "A familiar grip in the kitchen"; seventh, "A woman's Monday occupation and two thousand pounds"; eighth, "A quiet stream"; ninth, "The name of a great physical philosopher"; tenth, "An intoxicating drink and a period"; eleventh, "The fourth president of the United States"; twelfth, "What most old maids desire to find"; thirteenth, "A general that defeated Napoleon Bonaparte"; fourteenth, "An afflicted stream"; fifteenth, "A dinner sauce"; sixteenth, "The end of a vessel's journey"; seventeenth, "A slang phrase for handsome"; eighteenth, "A military defence and a famous novelist"; nineteenth, "A falsehood and a short name for mother"; twentieth, "That upon which we rely."

Under each station was a line where the name of the towns were to be written. The first girl's prize, a miniature trunk, was won by May Fullington; the second, a tourist's purse, by Helen Jackson. The first boy's prize, a leather traveling case, was won by Harry Conley; the second, a traveling mug in leather case, by Tom Griffith, Jr.

At the destination a dainty lunch was served. And the excursion wound up a grand ball.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GUILD.

The Young People's Guild of the St. John's Episcopal church gave a birthday party at Sedgwick Music hall last night. A very interesting program was given, the last number being a farce, entitled "Wanted, a Deaf Man," which was written by Mrs. Toler. The farce was a great success, the best part being the love making between Clara Seiden and Mr. Charles Higdon.

After the program was finished the floor was cleared for dancing, which occupied the rest of the evening.

As the Guild is a charitable organization, each guest handed the treasurer a cent for every year of his or her age. The money thus raised will be used for charitable purposes.

FOR MR. AND MRS. VINCENT.

On last Thursday evening C. E. No. 1 of the First Presbyterian church gave a colonial banquet to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Addington Vincent. The parlors of the church were thrown open for the occasion, which was the most enjoyable event ever given by the society.

After spending some time in social intercourse the guests adjourned to the west parlors, where tables were arranged for the banquet. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent were given the place of honor at the head of the table.

Several toasts were then given, Mr. Earl Evans acting as toastmaster.

Many of those present wore colonial costumes with powdered faces and hair, and everything had a distinct colonial air.

After the banquet the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Vincent many years of happy life.

FRANKLIN SCHOOL RECEPTION.

One of the most pleasant social events of the winter in educational circles was that of the reception given on Thursday afternoon by the Franklin teachers at their school building on the West Side. The hours were from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, and during that period the rooms were thronged with guests and visitors. About 175 persons were present.

The teachers receiving were Misses Anna Mulvey, Mary Shaw, Anna Stanton, Helen McCormick, Pearl McCormick and Florence Mulvey. Miss Anna Mulvey has been principal of the Franklin school for five years and during that time has won great popularity among both pupils, parents and patrons of the school. She is considered one of the foremost teachers of the city, and as one of the local educators has no superior in either zeal or ability. The other teachers of the Franklin school are like their principal, greatly esteemed in the community, beloved by their pupils and popular with all.

The various rooms in the building presented a gala appearance last Thursday, having been elaborately decorated for the occasion. Palms, ferns, growing plants and cut flowers were in profusion, while the general color scheme used in decorating was red, white and blue, in honor of Washington's birthday. An orchestra of stringed instruments discoursed sweet music during the afternoon.

In each room were stationed certain pupils who conducted to visitors from one place of interest to another and showed specimens of writing, drawing, language work, map drawing, etc., of the different scholars. In all grades, from the first primary to the seventh grade, these samples and specimens were of high merit, showing thorough training of the teacher and careful work by the pupils.

A feature of great educational value to the pupil and of interest to the visitor was the use made of pictorial art as a means of instruction. Some rooms had as many as 100 mounted pictures on the walls. Views of famous places, portraits of famous persons, copies of famous paintings were noticed. Current events, biography, history, travel, art and natural science were illustrated by pictures cut from magazines, illustrated papers and gathered from various sources. Some of these were mounted on cardboard and some framed. Each room boasted its collection of curios, odd pieces of pottery, shells and mementoes. One room had an aquarium with gold fish in it. Another showed specimens of the star fish. The visitor was impressed with the thought of the educational value of these influences and environments on the child. When pupils look up from their work, and their eyes rest upon a beautiful vase, a picture of the Steyne Madonna or a beautiful plant in the window, they are certainly gaining strength which will be apparent throughout their lives.

There were many things of interest not only within the building, but the play grounds at Franklin school are worthy of mention. A fine outdoor gymnasium has lately been erected on the grounds, including turning poles, see-saws, merry-go-rounds, etc., which furnish healthful exercise and pleasure for the children.

All in all the reception by the Franklin teachers was a decided success and gave parents and friends in attendance a better idea of the public school system of Wichita than they had before entertained.
